

13th International BUILDAIR Symposium

Airtight Buildings, Thermography and Ventilation Systems in Practice

April 5, 2023

Dear friends from all over the world,
Ladies and Gentlemen,

You should mark April 14th in your calendar – until then the early bird price applies to your participation in the International BUILDAIR Symposium. And it's worth it in many ways: In 20 lectures, new developments and project experiences will be presented, which you can use directly in your everyday work. It deals with, for example, how hidden mold infestation can be localized on the construction site, what needs to be considered when measuring buildings with flexible airtight layers and how old systems and new components can be combined with each other. You can find an overview of the highly interesting program on the conference website.

In addition to the highly interesting program of lectures, there is another good reason to visit the symposium: a specialist exhibition will be held directly next to the plenary room, where you can find out more about products and services for airtightness and ventilation systems without obligation.

It is also very important to talk to colleagues – from many European countries and overseas. There are opportunities to do this not only during the lecture breaks, but especially at the conference dinner on Friday evening. With delicious food and a good glass of beer or wine, you can quickly get into conversation and make new contacts. Therefore – don't wait until April 14th, better register now ...

Kind regards,

Sabine Schneider
